November 2007      Avalon provides executive protection for David Beckham

Avalon Security Corporation, the provider of security services in the Twin Cities provided executive protection to David Beckham, world renowned soccer player. Avalon provided security guard services starting with his arrival on Saturday in downtown Minneapolis.

Upon David's arrival on Saturday, November 10th, 2007, Avalon's executive protection crew was guiding him through the large group of fans in which Avalon maintained flexibility with his ever changing schedule.

While David was in the spotlight, Avalon was right beside him ensuring his safety and security while he walked the field at the Metrodome on Sunday night amongst all the fans and frenzy. Over twenty thousand fans were in attendance at his premier game including over one-hundred fifty Avalon personnel ranging from ticket takers, ushers and security guards.

Despite the fawning over Beckham, Galaxy players don't mind being pushed out of the spotlight while Daniel J. Seman, Chief Executive Officer of Avalon Security Corporation along with Jeffrey L. Spoerndle, President of Avalon maintain a safe perimeter for David's exit off the field after a victory for the Galaxy.

Avalon Security is the official provider of security services for the Minnesota Vikings, the University of Minnesota Athletics Department, the National Sports Center in Blaine, Minnesota and provides security services locally, nationally and internationally.

Daniel J. Seman stated "David Beckham was wonderful to work with. He was gracious and professional and made numerous stops to sign autographs and take pictures with young soccer players. Ever present of the possibility of an overzealous fan, security was extremely tight around this young man who is now expecting his fourth child with Victoria Beckham (aka Posh Spice)."
